
Is this

Joseph Smith?

Posted by missy - 2008/03/22 07:10

This thread discusses the Content article: Is this

Joseph Smith?

Who Cares????

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by The Keeper - 2008/03/22 07:34

Richard N. Holzapfel, a professor of church history at Brigham Young University, said that the Internet photo is a reproduction of a daguerreotype, or early photograph, owned by the Community of Christ (formerly known as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter

I wonder which splinter group they're trying to distance themselves from with that name change?

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by prisonpig - 2008/03/22 09:15

I tried to see a deceptive look on the face of this person. He kind of has that look so it very well could be Joe's myth!

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by The Keeper - 2008/03/22 09:33

prisonpig wrote:

I tried to see a deceptive look on the face of this person. He kind of has that look so it very well could be Joe's myth!

Nice to finally have a face on that WANTED poster!

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by utocoman - 2008/03/22 09:58

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere. It has to be the founder of the church of Joseph's myth!

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by WaynesWorld - 2008/03/22 11:36

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere. It has to be the founder of the church of Joseph's myth! You're all just a bunch of jealous losers cause you can't start a religious following of your own! :)

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by utocoman - 2008/03/22 12:17

WaynesWorld wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere. It has to be the founder of the church of Joseph's myth!You're all just a bunch of jealous losers cause you can't start a religious following of your own! :)

If I could just find that magical rock the world you be different!!

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by ThomasK - 2008/03/22 12:27

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/22 14:18

ThomasK wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

OK where is the picture I don't see it!!

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by The Keeper - 2008/03/23 08:00

Just Reading wrote:

ThomasK wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

OK where is the picture I don't see it!!

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/Sthumb03a.jpg>

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/smithpix.htm>

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/23 15:44

The Keeper wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

ThomasK wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

OK where is the picture I don't see it!!

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/Sthumb03a.jpg>

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/smithpix.htm>

Boy he sure isn't that blonde haired handsome man the LDS Church makes him out to be, is he....

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by Uncle_Bud - 2008/03/23 18:45

Just Reading wrote:

The Keeper wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

ThomasK wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

OK where is the picture I don't see it!!

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/Sthumb03a.jpg>

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/smithpix.htm>

Boy he sure isn't that blonde haired handsome man the LDS Church makes him out to be, is he....

Well, maybe he hadn't asked the Demon of his Juipster Tailsman to make him pretty yet.

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by Uncle_Bud - 2008/03/23 18:46

Just Reading wrote:

The Keeper wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

ThomasK wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

OK where is the picture I don't see it!!

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/Sthumb03a.jpg>

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/smithpix.htm>

Boy he sure isn't that blonde haired handsome man the LDS Church makes him out to be, is he....

Well, maybe he hadn't asked the Demon of his Juipster Tailsman to make him pretty yet.

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by Uncle_Bud - 2008/03/23 18:47

Just Reading wrote:

The Keeper wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Thomask wrote:

utocoman wrote:

Yep.. I would know that face of a treasure seeking stone reading, pedophile, adultureous, polygamous man anywhere.

Well you ought to. You see him every time you look into a mirror.

OK where is the picture I don't see it!!

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/Sthumb03a.jpg>

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/smithpix.htm>

Boy he sure isn't that blonde haired handsome man the LDS Church makes him out to be, is he....

Well, maybe he hadn't asked the Demon of his Juipster Tailsman to make him pretty yet.

=====

Re:Is this Joseph Smith?

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/24 19:15

Here is the question:

Would you buy a car from this man "LOL"

<http://olivercowdery.com/smithhome/Sthumb03a.jpg>

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/24 20:20

I don't believe that this is a picture of Joseph Smith. For one thing, there is very little resemblance in the facial features according to what I've seen from the actual death mask of the man.

But it could possibly be a picture of one of his descendants, his son, or a grandson.

What ever the case...I don't see the purpose in mocking or deriding this unknown, and long dead individual.

Why do people have to make mean remarks regarding the personal appearances of other people anyway?

This particular young man just looks pretty much like most of the pictures I've seen of young men during the Civil War.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/24 20:29

Jaye wrote:

I don't believe that this is a picture of Joseph Smith. For one thing, there is very little resemblance in the facial features according to what I've seen from the actual death mask of the man.

But it could possibly be a picture of one of his descendants, his son, or a grandson.

What ever the case...I don't see the purpose in mocking or deriding this unknown, and long dead individual.

Why do people have to make mean remarks regarding the personal appearances of other people anyway?

This particular young man just looks pretty much like most of the pictures I've seen of young men during the Civil War.

http://debeduinos.files.wordpress.com/2007/04/homer_simpson.jpg

"Nope" I still wouldn't buy a car from him!!!

Re:Is this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/25 15:40

It saddens me to see so many people condemning themselves to a life in hell by criticizing the prophet of God.

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/25 19:19

Leonardo wrote:

It saddens me to see so many people condemning themselves to a life in hell by criticizing the prophet of God.

What hell? According to LDS Doctrine...there is no hell...to speak of.

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/25 19:19

Just Reading wrote:

Jaye wrote:

I don't believe that this is a picture of Joseph Smith. For one thing, there is very little resemblance in the facial features according to what I've seen from the actual death mask of the man.

But it could possibly be a picture of one of his descendants, his son, or a grandson.

What ever the case...I don't see the purpose in mocking or deriding this unknown, and long dead individual.

Why do people have to make mean remarks regarding the personal appearances of other people anyway?

This particular young man just looks pretty much like most of the pictures I've seen of young men during the Civil War.

http://debeduinos.files.wordpress.com/2007/04/homer_simpson.jpg

"Nope" I still wouldn't buy a car from him!!!

How about a surrey with a fringe on the top?

Re:Is this

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/25 21:50

Jaye wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Jaye wrote:

I don't believe that this is a picture of Joseph Smith. For one thing, there is very little resemblance in the facial features according to what I've seen from the actual death mask of the man.

But it could possibly be a picture of one of his descendants, his son, or a grandson.

What ever the case...I don't see the purpose in mocking or deriding this unknown, and long dead individual.

Why do people have to make mean remarks regarding the personal appearances of other people anyway?

This particular young man just looks pretty much like most of the pictures I've seen of young men during the Civil War.

http://debeduinos.files.wordpress.com/2007/04/homer_simpson.jpg

"Nope" I still wouldn't buy a car from him!!!

How about a surrey with a fringe on the top?

http://debeduinos.files.wordpress.com/2007/04/homer_simpson.jpg

Hmmmm does that come with a BEER...???

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 10:42

Just Reading wrote:

Jaye wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Jaye wrote:

I don't believe that this is a picture of Joseph Smith. For one thing, there is very little resemblance in the facial features according to what I've seen from the actual death mask of the man.

But it could possibly be a picture of one of his descendants, his son, or a grandson.

What ever the case...I don't see the purpose in mocking or deriding this unknown, and long dead individual.

Why do people have to make mean remarks regarding the personal appearances of other people anyway?

This particular young man just looks pretty much like most of the pictures I've seen of young men during the Civil War.

http://debeduinos.files.wordpress.com/2007/04/homer_simpson.jpg

"Nope" I still wouldn't buy a car from him!!!

How about a surrey with a fringe on the top?

http://debeduinos.files.wordpress.com/2007/04/homer_simpson.jpg

Hmmmm does that come with a BEER...???

Since Joseph wasn't above enjoying his brews...I don't see why not.;

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 10:54

Joseph Smith never drank liquor. Just read the 89th section of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will see that it was against his religion.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 10:59

It looks as if Tigerlily has been reincarnated as a male.:huh:

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:04

Leonardo wrote:

Joseph Smith never drank liquor. Just read the 89th section of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will see that it was against his religion.

If Joseph Smith never drank liquor...then why did he grant himself a license to manufacture, sell and distribute liquor from the Governor's mansion?

Why did he set up a bar in the parlor and employ Porter Rockwell as the bartender? (At least until Emma got sick and tired of the smoke, and the mess when the boys missed the spittoons.)

I suppose you don't believe that he drank wine...except for sacrament...as INSTRUCTED in the Word of Wisdom?

Re:Is this

Posted by ThomasK - 2008/03/26 11:05

Leonardo wrote:

Joseph Smith never drank liquor. Just read the 89th section of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will see that it was against his religion.

I'm not sure how you know that, or if it really matters. I didn't know it was "his" religion. I doubt if those doofuses on here are condemning themselves to a life of hell. Look at how many times the Lord's name is taken in vain, daily. Hell would be a pretty crowded place without the Atonement. Wouldn't you say so?

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:10

"Doofuses"?:huh:

Re:Is this

Posted by JLD - 2008/03/26 11:19

Jaye wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Joseph Smith never drank liquor. Just read the 89th section of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will see that it was against his religion.

If Joseph Smith never drank liquor...then why did he grant himself a license to manufacture, sell and distribute liquor from the Governor's mansion?

Why did he set up a bar in the parlor and employ Porter Rockwell as the bartender? (At least until Emma got sick and tired of the smoke, and the mess when the boys missed the spittoons.)

I suppose you don't believe that he drank wine...except for sacrament...as INSTRUCTED in the Word of Wisdom?

I doubt Leonardo's postings are to be taken seriously.

Re:Is this

Posted by ThomasK - 2008/03/26 11:21

Jaye wrote:
"Doofuses"?:huh:

That's a technical term for utocoman.

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:22

JLD wrote:

Jaye wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Joseph Smith never drank liquor. Just read the 89th section of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will see that it was against his religion.

If Joseph Smith never drank liquor...then why did he grant himself a license to manufacture, sell and distribute liquor from the Governor's mansion?

Why did he set up a bar in the parlor and employ Porter Rockwell as the bartender? (At least until Emma got sick and tired of the smoke, and the mess when the boys missed the spittoons.)

I suppose you don't believe that he drank wine...except for sacrament...as INSTRUCTED in the Word of Wisdom?

I doubt Leonardo's postings are to be taken seriously.

It's possible that he is just one more troll that likes to push buttons.

But it's also possible that he is only one more in a long line of individuals who have been blinded to the truth by their own faith's indoctrination.

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:22

Thomask wrote:

Jaye wrote:

"Doofuses"?:huh:

That's a technical term for utocoman.

Oh...:P Whew...I thought you were talking about me.:blush:

Re:Is this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 11:30

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

Re:Is this

Posted by utocoman - 2008/03/26 11:33

Leonardo wrote:

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

Do we have proof he screwed all his wives and his apostales wives or did he just make them honorable women?

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 11:35

You are a wicked person.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:38

Leonardo wrote:

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

The evidence is available for anyone who cares to look it up.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:39

Leonardo wrote:

You are a wicked person.

Perhaps...but only one thing is certain...he is an individual who has a big grudge against Mormonism in general.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 11:41

Then God will punish him. I will not associate with him anymore.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:44

Leonardo wrote:

Then God will punish him. I will not associate with him anymore.

Probably a wise decision.

But remember...God certainly WILL punish those whom He will punish...and for HIS reasons...and God also detests arrogance and self-righteousness.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 11:47

Yes he will and that is why he will punish that ucocoman person.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 11:56

Leonardo wrote:

Yes he will and that is why he will punish that ucocoman person.

We ALL stand to be judged. Utocoman will not stand alone.

Judgment is God's and God's alone. Leave it to Him, and concern yourself with your own shortcomings.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 11:58

That is right that it is God's judgement and punishment. It won't be me who will punish this ucocoman but it will be God. I know that I am not perfect but I repent every day so I know that God will treat me well.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by prisonpig - 2008/03/26 12:07

Leonardo wrote:

That is right that it is God's judgement and punishment. It won't be me who will punish this ucocoman but it will be God. I know that I am not perfect but I repent every day so I know that God will treat me well.

I hope you're being sarcastic in these silly posts of yours, Leonardo! I believe many people, especially people around here, are in for a huge shock when their day of reckoning comes! They're going to find out that they aren't as righteous as they think.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 12:10

No doubt that Utocoman will be punished for his wrongdoings...but he will also rewarded for those good things which he has done.

As will we all.

Try to remember this, set aside the tendency towards self-righteousness...and you will do well.

How old are you Leo?

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Leonardo - 2008/03/26 12:19

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 13:04

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Because you speak as one who has not experienced much of life as yet.

You are probably in the process of preparing for your mission. If someone asks if it were true that Joseph Smith committed bigamy...what will you say?

If someone asks if it were true that Joseph Smith sent men to commit the crime of destruction of a privately owned printing press...what will you say?

If someone reads the Book of Mormon, and reads the words of the prophet Jacob, regarding the abomination of plurality of wives...and asks why Joseph Smith turned around and claimed that God commanded him to commit this abomination and engage in the very thing that the Nephites were doing...and in so doing...pissed God off...what will you say?

If they bring up the issue about blacks being denied the priesthood for so long...and they have done enough research to know that Joseph Smith never believed that the blacks could not receive the priesthood...and in fact...he had, himself, bestowed the gift of the priesthood on a number of black members...what will you say?

How will you explain the contradictions? How will you explain Brigham Young's outright bigotry?

How will you explain Brigham's doctrine of Blood Atonement?

It has been my experience that most young Elders know very little about the history of their own faith...and of the behavior of it's founder, and his successors.

They embark on their mission armed with their testimonies regarding what little they learned in Sunday School, Primary, Young Adults, Seminary, and sometimes at the local Institute of Religion...and of course...the MTC.

But they know very little indeed. I know. I was very much like you when I was your age.

=====

Re: Is this

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/26 14:37

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Well youngster you wanted some proof of Joseph Smith drinking well how's this:

The History of the Church contains this information concerning an incident in Carthage jail:

"Before the jailor came in, his boy brought in some water, and said the guard wanted some wine. Joseph gave Dr. Richards two dollars to give the guard; but the guard said one was enough, and would take no more.

"The guard immediately sent for a bottle of wine, pipes, and two small papers of tobacco; and one of the guards brought them into the jail soon after the jailor went out. Dr. Richards uncorked the bottle, and presented a glass to Joseph, who tasted, as Brother Taylor and the doctor, and the bottle was then given to the guard, who turned to go out." (History of the Church, Vol. 6, page 616)

Under the date of May 2, 1843, the following statement is recorded in Joseph Smith's History of the Church:

"Wednesday, 3.--Called at the office and drank a glass of wine with Sister Jenetta Richards, made by her mother in England, and reviewed a portion of the conference minutes." (History of the Church, Vol. 5, p. 380)

In the History of the Church, Vol. 2, p. 26, we find the following:

"The council proceeded to investigate certain charges presented by Elder Rigdon against Martin Harris; one was, that he told A.C. Russell, Esq., that Joseph drank too much liquor when he was translating the Book of Mormon;...

"Brother Harris did not tell Esq., Russell that Brother Joseph drank too much liquor while translating the Book of Mormon, but this thing occurred previous to the translating of the book;..."

I have more if you want!!!

Re: Is this

Posted by ThomasK - 2008/03/26 15:01

Just Reading wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Well youngster you wanted some proof of Joseph Smith drinking well how's this:

The History of the Church contains this information concerning an incident in Carthage jail:

"Before the jailor came in, his boy brought in some water, and said the guard wanted some wine. Joseph gave Dr. Richards two dollars to give the guard; but the guard said one was enough, and would take no more.

"The guard immediately sent for a bottle of wine, pipes, and two small papers of tobacco; and one of the guards brought them into the jail soon after the jailor went out. Dr. Richards uncorked the bottle, and presented a glass to Joseph, who tasted, as Brother Taylor and the doctor, and the bottle was then given to the guard, who turned to go out." (History of the Church, Vol. 6, page 616)

Under the date of May 2, 1843, the following statement is recorded in Joseph Smith's History of the Church:

"Wednesday, 3.--Called at the office and drank a glass of wine with Sister Jenetta Richards, made by her mother in England, and reviewed a portion of the conference minutes." (History of the Church, Vol. 5, p. 380)

In the History of the Church, Vol. 2, p. 26, we find the following:

"The council proceeded to investigate certain charges presented by Elder Rigdon against Martin Harris; one was, that he told A.C. Russell, Esq., that Joseph drank too much liquor when he was translating the Book of Mormon;...

"Brother Harris did not tell Esq., Russell that Brother Joseph drank too much liquor while translating the Book of Mormon, but this thing occurred previous to the translating of the book;..."

I have more if you want!!!

Now go easy on the kid. Second thought, never mind.

Leonardo, welcome to the real world. My only advice is to stay focused on what's important. Your family and your relationship with Heavenly Father. Otherwise all this other stuff is going to drive you batty.

Re: Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 15:05

Good and sage advice Thomas. I heartily agree.;

Re: Is this

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/26 15:25

ThomasK wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Well youngster you wanted some proof of Joseph Smith drinking well how's this:

The History of the Church contains this information concerning an incident in Carthage jail:

"Before the jailor came in, his boy brought in some water, and said the guard wanted some wine. Joseph gave Dr. Richards two dollars to give the guard; but the guard said one was enough, and would take no more.

"The guard immediately sent for a bottle of wine, pipes, and two small papers of tobacco; and one of the guards brought them into the jail soon after the jailor went out. Dr. Richards uncorked the bottle, and presented a glass to Joseph, who tasted, as Brother Taylor and the doctor, and the bottle was then given to the guard, who turned to go out." (History of the Church, Vol. 6, page 616)

Under the date of May 2, 1843, the following statement is recorded in Joseph Smith's History of the Church:

"Wednesday, 3.--Called at the office and drank a glass of wine with Sister Jenetta Richards, made by her mother in England, and reviewed a portion of the conference minutes." (History of the Church, Vol. 5, p. 380)

In the History of the Church, Vol. 2, p. 26, we find the following:

"The council proceeded to investigate certain charges presented by Elder Rigdon against Martin Harris; one was, that he told A.C. Russell, Esq., that Joseph drank too much liquor when he was translating the Book of Mormon;...

"Brother Harris did not tell Esq., Russell that Brother Joseph drank too much liquor while translating the Book of Mormon, but this thing occurred previous to the translating of the book;..."

I have more if you want!!!

Now go easy on the kid. Second thought, never mind.

Leonardo, welcome to the real world. My only advice is to stay focused on what's important. Your family and your relationship with Heavenly Father. Otherwise all this other stuff is going to drive you batty.

Good advice....!!!! B)

=====

Re: Is this

Posted by ThomasK - 2008/03/26 15:42

Just Reading wrote:

ThomasK wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Well youngster you wanted some proof of Joseph Smith drinking well how's this:

The History of the Church contains this information concerning an incident in Carthage jail:

"Before the jailor came in, his boy brought in some water, and said the guard wanted some wine. Joseph gave Dr. Richards two dollars to give the guard; but the guard said one was enough, and would take no more.

"The guard immediately sent for a bottle of wine, pipes, and two small papers of tobacco; and one of the guards brought them into the jail soon after the jailor went out. Dr. Richards uncorked the bottle, and presented a glass to Joseph, who tasted, as Brother Taylor and the doctor, and the bottle was then given to the guard, who turned to go out." (History of the Church, Vol. 6, page 616)

Under the date of May 2, 1843, the following statement is recorded in Joseph Smith's History of the Church:

"Wednesday, 3.--Called at the office and drank a glass of wine with Sister Jenetta Richards, made by her mother in England, and reviewed a portion of the conference minutes." (History of the Church, Vol. 5, p. 380)

In the History of the Church, Vol. 2, p. 26, we find the following:

"The council proceeded to investigate certain charges presented by Elder Rigdon against Martin Harris; one was, that he told A.C. Russell, Esq., that Joseph drank too much liquor when he was translating the Book of Mormon;...

"Brother Harris did not tell Esq., Russell that Brother Joseph drank too much liquor while translating the Book of Mormon, but this thing occurred previous to the translating of the book;..."

I have more if you want!!!

Now go easy on the kid. Second thought, never mind.

Leonardo, welcome to the real world. My only advice is to stay focused on what's important. Your family and your relationship with Heavenly Father. Otherwise all this other stuff is going to drive you batty.

Good advice....!!!! B)

Leonardo, here's another lesson you can learn here. People that don't believe the way you do are good people also. Take Just Reading. He may not see things the way you and I do. (I may not see things the way you do.) But he will be the first to defend people that are being harmed or being made fun of because of how they look, their sexual orientation, color of their skin etc. That is what I have learned here.

And some folks I need to learn to let go.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Betz - 2008/03/26 18:53

prisonpig wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

That is right that it is God's judgement and punishment. It won't be me who will punish this ucocoman but it will be God. I know that I am not perfect but I repent every day so I know that God will treat me well.

I hope you're being sarcastic in these silly posts of yours, Leonardo! I believe many people, especially people around here, are in for a huge shock when their day of reckoning comes! They're going to find out that they aren't as righteous as they think.

I was starting to wonder if Pittakos is up to his ole tricks again! :laugh:

Or maybe our ole buddy Dubss is being his true teenage self!

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by ThomasK - 2008/03/26 19:44

Betz wrote:

prisonpig wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

That is right that it is God's judgement and punishment. It won't be me who will punish this ucocoman but it will be God. I know that I am not perfect but I repent every day so I know that God will treat me well.

I hope you're being sarcastic in these silly posts of yours, Leonardo! I believe many people, especially people around here, are in for a huge shock when their day of reckoning comes! They're going to find out that they aren't as righteous as they think.

I was starting to wonder if Pittakos is up to his ole tricks again! :laugh:

Or maybe our ole buddy Dubss is being his true teenage self!

If this turns out to be Dubss, it isn't going to be pretty. That's a promise Dubss.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/26 21:09

I was thinking more along the lines of Tigerlily. Same naive beliefs.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Betz - 2008/03/26 21:25

Jaye wrote:

I was thinking more along the lines of Tigerlily. Same naive beliefs.

True . . . I'd almost forgot about Tigerlily.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by prisonpig - 2008/03/27 07:28

Betz wrote:

prisonpig wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

That is right that it is God's judgement and punishment. It won't be me who will punish this ucocoman but it will be God. I know that I am not perfect but I repent every day so I know that God will treat me well.

I hope you're being sarcastic in these silly posts of yours, Leonardo! I believe many people, especially people around here, are in for a huge shock when their day of reckoning comes! They're going to find out that they aren't as righteous as they think.

I was starting to wonder if Pittakos is up to his ole tricks again! :laugh:

Or maybe our ole buddy Dubss is being his true teenage self!

I wouldn't put it past Dubss to get a new name and start posting again, except this Leonardo isn't ignorant enough to be Dubss, just naive.:huh:

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Just Reading - 2008/03/27 10:36

ThomasK wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

ThomasK wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Well youngster you wanted some proof of Joseph Smith drinking well how's this:

The History of the Church contains this information concerning an incident in Carthage jail:

"Before the jailor came in, his boy brought in some water, and said the guard wanted some wine. Joseph gave Dr. Richards two dollars to give the guard; but the guard said one was enough, and would take no more.

"The guard immediately sent for a bottle of wine, pipes, and two small papers of tobacco; and one of the guards brought them into the jail soon after the jailor went out. Dr. Richards uncorked the bottle, and presented a glass to Joseph, who tasted, as Brother Taylor and the doctor, and the bottle was then given to the guard, who turned to go out." (History of the Church, Vol. 6, page 616)

Under the date of May 2, 1843, the following statement is recorded in Joseph Smith's History of the Church:

"Wednesday, 3.--Called at the office and drank a glass of wine with Sister Jenetta Richards, made by her mother in England, and reviewed a portion of the conference minutes." (History of the Church, Vol. 5, p. 380)

In the History of the Church, Vol. 2, p. 26, we find the following:

"The council proceeded to investigate certain charges presented by Elder Rigdon against Martin Harris; one was, that he told A.C. Russell, Esq., that Joseph drank too much liquor when he was translating the Book of Mormon;...

"Brother Harris did not tell Esq., Russell that Brother Joseph drank too much liquor while translating the Book of Mormon, but this thing occurred previous to the translating of the book;..."

I have more if you want!!!

Now go easy on the kid. Second thought, never mind.

Leonardo, welcome to the real world. My only advice is to stay focused on what's important. Your family and your relationship with Heavenly Father. Otherwise all this other stuff is going to drive you batty.

Good advice....!!!! B)

Leonardo, here's another lesson you can learn here. People that don't believe the way you do are good people also. Take Just Reading. He may not see things the way you and I do. (I may not see things the way you do.) But he will be the first to defend people that are being harmed or being made fun of because of how they look, their sexual orientation, color of their skin etc. That is what I have learned here.

And some folks I need to learn to let go.

Hey Thanks Thomask for the kind words!!! :)

I also believe that the way I see things could be wrong too!!
that's why I'm always open to hear others opinions
so that I may look at both sides, then I try to pick the best one for me!! I also like to tell others what I have found so they can do the same....

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Wren - 2008/03/27 14:53

Just Reading wrote:

Thomask wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Thomask wrote:

Just Reading wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Of course I am not always righteous. That is why I repent of my unrighteousness everyday. I am 18 3/4 years old. Why?

Well youngster you wanted some proof of Joseph Smith drinking well how's this:

The History of the Church contains this information concerning an incident in Carthage jail:

"Before the jailor came in, his boy brought in some water, and said the guard wanted some wine. Joseph gave Dr.

Richards two dollars to give the guard; but the guard said one was enough, and would take no more.

"The guard immediately sent for a bottle of wine, pipes, and two small papers of tobacco; and one of the guards brought them into the jail soon after the jailor went out. Dr. Richards uncorked the bottle, and presented a glass to Joseph, who tasted, as Brother Taylor and the doctor, and the bottle was then given to the guard, who turned to go out." (History of the Church, Vol. 6, page 616)

Under the date of May 2, 1843, the following statement is recorded in Joseph Smith's History of the Church:

"Wednesday, 3.--Called at the office and drank a glass of wine with Sister Jenetta Richards, made by her mother in England, and reviewed a portion of the conference minutes." (History of the Church, Vol. 5, p. 380)

In the History of the Church, Vol. 2, p. 26, we find the following:

"The council proceeded to investigate certain charges presented by Elder Rigdon against Martin Harris; one was, that he told A.C. Russell, Esq., that Joseph drank too much liquor when he was translating the Book of Mormon;...

"Brother Harris did not tell Esq., Russell that Brother Joseph drank too much liquor while translating the Book of Mormon, but this thing occurred previous to the translating of the book;..."

I have more if you want!!!

Now go easy on the kid. Second thought, never mind.

Leonardo, welcome to the real world. My only advice is to stay focused on what's important. Your family and your relationship with Heavenly Father. Otherwise all this other stuff is going to drive you batty.

Good advice....!!!! B)

Leonardo, here's another lesson you can learn here. People that don't believe the way you do are good people also. Take Just Reading. He may not see things the way you and I do. (I may not see things the way you do.) But he will be the first to defend people that are being harmed or being made fun of because of how they look, their sexual orientation, color of their skin etc. That is what I have learned here.

And some folks I need to learn to let go.

Hey Thanks Thomask for the kind words!!! :)

I also believe that the way I see things could be wrong too!!
that's why I'm always open to hear others opinions
so that I may look at both sides, then I try to pick the best one for me!! I also like to tell others what I have found so they can do the same....

Leonard is young, thus he believes that his testimony is knowledge rather than faith.

If he will learn patience and patiently be willing to learn, he can benefit from his interaction on this forum.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by BLogan - 2008/03/27 16:54

Leonardo wrote:

Joseph Smith never drank liquor. Just read the 89th section of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will see that it was against his religion.

I bet that you actually believe that.
hahahaha

wasn't adultery against Smith's religion also?

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by BLogan - 2008/03/27 17:00

Leonardo wrote:

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

well my little frien let me ask you this, do you have any actual proof that Joseph Smith didn't drink alcohol? Joe Smith wasn't the man that the Mormon Church pretends that he was. this Pied Piper of Mormonism has condemned himself and a large percentage of his followers to eternal separation from God.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Jaye - 2008/03/27 17:05

Now THAT'S a matter of opinion BLogan.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by JLD - 2008/03/27 17:12

BLogan wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

well my little frien let me ask you this, do you have any actual proof that Joseph Smith didn't drink alcohol? Joe Smith wasn't the man that the Mormon Church pretends that he was. this Pied Piper of Mormonism has condemned himself and a large percentage of his followers to eternal separation from God.

Do you have any proof that he has condemned anyone to eternal separation from God? How is your assumption any better (or worse) than this fellow's assumption that Joseph Smith didn't drink liquor?

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Wren - 2008/03/27 17:41

An evangelical's assertion about who is separated from God is no better, no worse than that of a Catholic priest or a Mormon apostle.

Each individual is responsible for making his peace for God, and blogan certainly is not His mouthpiece, and neither is he an expert on the Bible or the Book of Mormon.

Let up on folks, blogan.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by BLogan - 2008/03/28 18:15

Wren wrote:

An evangelical's assertion about who is separated from God is no better, no worse than that of a Catholic priest or a Mormon apostle.

Each individual is responsible for making his peace for God, and blogan certainly is not His mouthpiece, and neither is he an expert on the Bible or the Book of Mormon.

Let up on folks, blogan.

I have never claimed to be God's mouthpiece here on Earth. But I guarantee you that neither was Joseph Smith, Thomas S. Monson or any other Mormon leader in between.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by BLogan - 2008/03/28 18:17

JLD wrote:

BLogan wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

well my little frien let me ask you this, do you have any actual proof that Joseph Smith didn't drink alcohol? Joe Smith wasn't the man that the Mormon Church pretends that he was. this Pied Piper of Mormonism has condemned himself and a large percentage of his followers to eternal separation from God.

Do you have any proof that he has condemned anyone to eternal seperation from God? How is your assumption any better (or worse) than this fellow's assumption that Joseph Smith didn't drink liquor?

Yes, the evidence is found in abundance in the doctrines, teachings, unbiblical beliefs and sermons from Joseph Smith right on down.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Wren - 2008/03/28 18:35

BLogan wrote:

Wren wrote:

An evangelical's assertion about who is separated from God is no better, no worse than that of a Catholic priest or a Mormon apostle.

Each individual is responsible for making his peace for God, and blogan certainly is not His mouthpiece, and neither is he an expert on the Bible or the Book of Mormon.

Let up on folks, blogan.

I have never claimed to be God's mouthpiece here on Earth. But I guarantee you that neither was Joseph Smith, Thomas S. Monson or any other Mormon leader in between.

You can't guarantee anything other than your own relationship with Jesus. Let this hatred go, brother.

=====

Re:ls this

Posted by Wren - 2008/03/28 18:37

BLogan wrote:

JLD wrote:

BLogan wrote:

Leonardo wrote:

Do you have proof that Joseph Smith drank liquor? Were you there or are you just making up stuff?

well my little frien let me ask you this, do you have any actual proof that Joseph Smith didn't drink alcohol? Joe Smith wasn't the man that the Mormon Church pretends that he was. this Pied Piper of Mormonism has condemned himself and a large percentage of his followers to eternal separation from God.

Do you have any proof that he has condemned anyone to eternal separation from God? How is your assumption any better (or worse) than this fellow's assumption that Joseph Smith didn't drink liquor?

Yes, the evidence is found in abundance in the doctrines, teachings, unbiblical beliefs and sermons from Joseph Smith right on down.

That JS drank alcoholic beverages is beyond doubt: he did. But as far as condemning anyone to "separation from God" eternally, then I would like blogan to give evidence to that point.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Uncle_Bud - 2008/03/28 20:07

BLogan wrote:

Wren wrote:

An evangelical's assertion about who is separated from God is no better, no worse than that of a Catholic priest or a Mormon apostle.

Each individual is responsible for making his peace for God, and blogan certainly is not His mouthpiece, and neither is he an expert on the Bible or the Book of Mormon.

Let up on folks, blogan.

I have never claimed to be God's mouthpiece here on Earth. But I guarantee you that neither was Joseph Smith, Thomas S. Monson or any other Mormon leader in between.

Well I find BLogan to have some interesting points, and it looks like he/she knows as much as anyone else on the board.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Uncle_Bud - 2008/03/28 20:09

BLogan wrote:

Wren wrote:

An evangelical's assertion about who is separated from God is no better, no worse than that of a Catholic priest or a Mormon apostle.

Each individual is responsible for making his peace for God, and blogan certainly is not His mouthpiece, and neither is he an expert on the Bible or the Book of Mormon.

Let up on folks, blogan.

I have never claimed to be God's mouthpiece here on Earth. But I guarantee you that neither was Joseph Smith, Thomas S. Monson or any other Mormon leader in between.

Well I find BLogan to have some interesting points, and it looks like he/she knows as much as anyone else on the board.

=====

Re:Is this

Posted by Wren - 2008/03/28 20:11

Then let my post his evidence. We all have opinions, but they don't mean anything in and of themselves.

=====