

---

Book of Mormon introduction change may reflect new thinking about an ancient people

Posted by dailyherald - 2007/11/24 00:05

---

A minor edit in the introduction to the Book of Mormon suggests a change of long-held historical perspective

Members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints believe as a matter of history that, centuries ago, in about A.D. 385, somewhere in the Americas there was an enormous battle between the last great army of a people known as the Nephites and the armies of a rival people known as the Lamanites.

Read more...

=====

Re: Book of Mormon introduction change may reflect new thinking about an ancient people

Posted by poodledoodledude - 2007/11/24 09:57

---

wow....interesting....

the "most correct book on earth."
is now becoming

"the most CORRECTED book on earth."

:D

=====

Re: Book of Mormon introduction change may reflect new thinking about an ancient people

Posted by MormonThink - 2007/11/25 17:57

---

Check out MormonThink.com

=====