
Many parents just say no to playing video games with kids

Posted by dailyherald - 2007/11/13 00:05

Jesse Lackman says his son spends a dozen hours a week waging medieval combat across the dreary dreamscapes of computer games. Just don't expect to find Lackman sitting beside him battling ogres and dragons.

"It's just such a waste of time," said Lackman, 47, a power plant operator from Center, N.D.

Read more...

=====

Re: Many parents just say no to playing video games with kids

Posted by poochie - 2007/12/06 16:50

As a single parent myself, I cherish the time with my teenage son. He wanted to meet me the other day to play baseball on his Nintendo Wii system. It was a beautiful day outside and it just seemed surreal to be inside playing baseball with him. He actually broke a sweat pitching to the tv screen! Anyway, I just bit my tongue and played it with him just to have the time together.

My personal blog as a single dad is:
<http://www.singleparentromance.com>

My 2 Cents

George

=====