

---

Tilton loses House seat at GOP county convention

Posted by Chuck E. Racer - 2008/04/26 15:54

---

This thread discusses the Content article: Tilton loses House seat at GOP county convention

Looks like only one vote made the difference again! One more delegate voting for the challengers would have caused a primary - lots more work and more money. Those two would not have been close calls if they had not voted for vouchers. I hope the county GOP got the message to leave vouchers ALONE! Sounds like that AND some other things must have hurt Rep. Tilton though.

=====

Re:Tilton loses House seat at GOP county convention

Posted by WatchDog - 2008/04/26 17:14

---

I appears that you need to review the voucher issue and figure out that most that supported vouchers also won today.

Tilton's issue that caused his demise was his support of the nuke issue and the support of his personal business to build plants creating more radioactive wastes. That, my friend, is the issue that took him out...not supporting vouchers.

=====

Re:Tilton loses House seat at GOP county convention

Posted by utocoman - 2008/04/26 17:31

---

Now Cannon needs to get the boot!

=====

Re:Tilton loses House seat at GOP county conventio

Posted by eldstenorge - 2008/04/26 17:50

---

Aaron Tilton was a great Representative. It is too bad that people only considered one issue. I will bet you will find more than one issue to disagree with the new representative on. Hopefully, they will elect the Democrat so people who as this blind get what they really deserve.

And, just because someone is an incumbent, does not make them bad. You need to look at the person. That is like throwing the baby out with the bath water, not too intelligent.

=====

Re:Tilton loses House seat at GOP county conventio

Posted by utocoman - 2008/04/26 18:15

---

eldstenorge wrote:

Hopefully, they will elect the Democrat so people who as this blind get what they really deserve.

You need to look at the person. That is like throwing the baby out with the bath water, not too intelligent.

Which commnet should we being paying closest attention too!! I prefer "elect the Democrat"
He's got my vote!!!

=====