There's only one remaining chapter in this fascinating spectacle. Negotiating the terms of Hillary's surrender. After which we will have six months of watching her enthusiastically stumping the country for Obama, denying with utter conviction Republican charges that he is the out of touch, latte-sipping elitist...

Yes, I am sure we will get those Republican charges that he is the out of touch, latte-sipping elitist. Which is just another way of saying Republican voters prefer a coffee drinking, war loving, good old boy who is a doofus.

Just who we have had the last seven plus years.

Amazing that people would even want "one of the guys" to be President, instead of the most intelligent (and if that makes one somewhat elitist, so be it) person available, but that is the Republican mind, I guess.

But it is not too late for American voters to figure out who the real Obama bin Laden is. They will not vote for a muslim with ties to those trying to blow up the Pentagon.

Oh Brother, I don't think any logical thinking American thinks he's attached to those who will blow up the pentagon. There's always a fringe nut job mentality group that believes this kind of nonsense.
