Uncle Bud, my high regard for you will never change but I have to say I think you're wrong on this issue. Obama will bring a good judgment to this country's problems that has long been lacking. That equates in no way to surrender.

Hmmmm. Are you that weak of an individual? Why would you have to kiss their butts, and more importantly who are they? African, Asian, Mideastern, Russian? Which Islamists are you afraid of?

If our country was still isolated from other nations by oceans, then I'd vote McCain over Obama.

But the USA is no longer isolated. We, like it or not, are a global society.

I don't think we understand just how much rancor there is for the US for our invasion of Iraq and our continued presence there.

I think we need a softer, gentler face as President at this time in history; one that can present a side to the US people AND present a side to the rest of the world.

At this time in history, I think Barak Hussein Obama is much better fitted for the task.

White supremacy groups are gathering, yet is their memory so short as to remember race Mr. Adolph Hitler was?

I am glad Bill Clinton is supporting Obama. I totally back anything Bill does. He was one of this nations finest Presidents and he knows what he is doing. I had the honor of meeting him recently when he was campaigning for Hillary and he is a very smart, well spoken and strong man.I had the chance to talk with him and spend a few minutes with him. He is a great guy I can only wish to meet him again!! Anything Bill backs, I back:) In fact I am volunteering for the Democrats to get him(Barack) in office!

LOL! I think it's pretty funny Bush has done more terrible things than Clinton EVER did . So what if the guy got some. He's a man and guess what LEAVE HIS PRIVATE AFFAIRS ALONE!! Pay attention to the good he is doing and has done in the past it so outweighs the bad. Compared to Bush. Bill and Barack are Saints. Can George Bush say any of this?? NO But he can say 1000's of families are missing moms, dads, brothers, sisters, husbands and wives over a war that at this point is useless. High gas prices? Unemployed and out of work americans, forclosed homes, no health insurance. Gee, Thanks George Bush for those wonderful things?? I think not. When a Democrat was in office meaning Bill Clinton. You could point to the lowest unemployment rate in modern times, the lowest inflation in 30 years, the highest home ownership in the country's history, dropping crime rates in many places, and reduced welfare rolls. He proposed the first balanced budget in decades and achieved a budget surplus. Positive outweighs the little negative you can find.!

Economies peak...and they plummet. Recessions come...and they go. They're cyclic. Just like global temperatures are cyclic.

I've owned my own business for more than 3 decades. And I have seen good times, and hard times. Right now...even though the economy is going through a rough phase...I can't keep up with the demand for my services. Business is good.

I provide all phases of asphalt construction and maintenance. And both property owners, and property management firms have realized the value of maintaining the parking lots of their investments rather than allowing them to go completely to pot and require completely ripping them out and starting from scratch.

This has been a very lucrative 8 years for me, and for many of my colleagues. Relatively few of my colleagues and/or competitors have folded...and the ones who did...did so because of poor planning on their parts.

Here is something to remember regarding recessions.

A recession is a significant decline in economic activity spread across the economy, lasting more than a few months, normally visible in real GDP, real income, employment, industrial production, and wholesale-retail sales. A recession begins just after the economy reaches a peak of activity and ends as the economy reaches its trough.

Because of the way a recession is defined, the beginning (peak in the economic cycle) or end (trough) of a recession can only be identified after the change in the trend has been present for several months.

The 2001 recession was announced by the NBER in November 2001, which later turned out to be the truth. Thus the recession ended the month it was announced by the NBER. In July 1981 the NBER declared an end to a six-month recession from January to July 1980, the last year of Jimmy Carter's presidency. For the 1981-82 recession, which was during President Reagan's first term, the NBER announced the July 1981 peak in January 1983, and the November 1982 trough in July 1983.

Economist Robert J. Gordon, a member of the NBER committee has stated that any announcement about the start of a new recession starting in 2008 is unlikely before the last few months of 2008 at the earliest.

Responding to a recession

Strategies for moving an economy out of a recession vary depending on which economic school the policymakers follow. While Keynesian economists may advocate deficit spending by the government to spark economic growth, supply-side economists may suggest tax cuts to promote business capital investment. laissez-faire economists may simply recommend the government remain "hands off" and not interfere with natural market forces.

Both government and business have responses to recessions. In the Philadelphia Business Journal, Strategic Business adviser Carter Schelling has discussed precautions businesses take to prepare for looming recession, likening it to fire drill. First, he suggests that business owners gauge customers' ability to resist recession and redesign customer offerings accordingly. He goes on to suggest they use lean principles, replace unhappy workers with those more motivated, eager and highly competitive. Also over-communicate. "Companies," he says, "get better at what they do during bad times." He calls his program the "Recession Drill."

Central bank response

Usually, central banks respond to recessions by easing monetary conditions, e.g. lowering interest rates. In the United States, the Federal Reserve has responded to potential slow downs by lowering the target Federal funds rate during recessions and other periods of lower growth. In fact, the Federal Reserve's lowering has even predated recent recessions. The charts below show the impact on the S&P500 and short and long term interest rates.

- * July 13, 1990-September 4, 1992: 8.00% to 3.00% (Includes 1990-1991 recession)
- * February 1, 1995-November 17, 1998: 6.00 - 4.75
- * May 16, 2000-June 25, 2003: 6.50- 1.00 (Includes 2001 recession)
- * June 29, 2006- (Mar. 18 2008): 5.25-2.25

Siegel points out that cuts in the Federal funds rate are now widely anticipated; thus, cuts are no longer followed by a longer-term rise in stock market indexes.

The declining frequency of recessions in the past two decades and the reduction in declines in GDP suggest that the Federal Reserve has been successful in moderating contractions. However some critics argue that reducing the Federal funds rate has had the effect of adding too much liquidity to the financial markets and excess debt accumulation by consumers.

Stock market and recessions

Some recessions have been anticipated by stock market declines. In Stocks for the Long Run, Siegel mentions that since 1948, ten recessions were preceded by a stock market decline, by a lead time of 0 to 13 months (average 5.7 months). It should be noted that ten stock market declines of greater than 10% in the DJIA were not followed by a recession.

The real-estate market also usually weakens before a recession. However real-estate declines can last much longer than recessions.

Since the business cycle is very hard to predict, Siegel argues that it is not possible to take advantage of economic cycles for timing investments. Even the NBER takes a few months to determine if a peak or trough has occurred.

During an economic decline, high yield stocks such as financial services, pharmaceuticals, and tobacco tend to hold up better. However when the economy starts to recover and the bottom of the market has passed (sometimes identified on charts as a MACD ), growth stocks tend to recover faster. There is significant disagreement about how health care and utilities tend to recover. Diversifying one's portfolio into international stocks may provide some safety; however, economies that are closely correlated with that of the U.S.A. may also be affected by a recession in the U.S.A..

History of recessions in the United States

According to economists, since 1854, the U.S.A. has encountered 32 cycles of expansions and contractions, with an average of 17 months of contraction and 38 months of expansion. However, they have been shorter and much less common in recent years. Since 1980, there have been only seven recessions (see charts to see how stocks did in these periods). The charts show the impact on stock market indices.

- * January-July 1980: 6 months
- * July 1981-November 1982: 16 months
- * July 1990-March 1991: 8 months
- * March 2001-November 2001: 8 months

During March 1991 to March 2001, the U.S.A. experienced the longest economic expansion - 120 months.

For the past four recessions, the NBER decision has approximately confirmed with the definition involving two consecutive quarters of decline. However the 2001 recession did not involve two consecutive quarters of decline, it was preceded by two quarters of alternating decline and weak growth.

Recession and politics

Generally an administration gets credit or blame for the state of economy during its time. This has caused disagreements about when a recession actually started. In an economic cycle, a downturn can be considered a consequence of an expansion reaching an unsustainable state, and is corrected by a brief decline. Thus it is not easy to isolate the causes of specific phases of the cycle.

The 1981 recession is thought to have been caused by the tight-money policy adopted by Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, before Ronald Reagan took office. Reagan supported that policy. Economist Walter Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the 1960s, said that "I call it a Reagan-Volcker-Carter recession. The resulting taming of inflation, did, however, set the stage for a robust growth period during Reagan's administration.

Causes of recessions

- * Speculation
- * Currency crises
- * Inflation
- * National debt

Effects of recessions

- * Unemployment
- * Foreclosures
- * Bankruptcies
- * Stock market crash
- * Reduced sales
- * Banks lend less money
- * Deflation

Again Look at the Scoreboard. the good outweighs the bad anytime! Your absolutely right that IS why our country is screwed up... Too many people voted Republican. Look at the approval ratings of your president Bush. Hmm not so good.. I guess you don't have any children that got blown to bits in the middle east over a FAKE war that just puts more cash in the Bush pocket. He came from an oil family and will always support that. It's sad that you have not had your eyes opened to this. Very sad day in America when people still don't see what's happening here. We need to find alternatives to not only fuel but medical for our kids are needed, jobs are needed etc. Come on seriously you can't deny that We had such a good economy when Clinton was in office and it has been steadily declining since Bush has been there. We need CHANGE and Barack is the clear choice here! Get back to me when you can find more than 2 sentences trying to degrade the Clintons. I can back up all the good they have done in this world with evidence and truth! How about your President??

I don't normally get into the political discussions, mainly because I don't think there is one bit of difference in either political party. None of them are true representatives of what the average American voter really wants.

That being said, I'm curious . . . have you had any of your children "blown to bits in the Middle East?" How about in Bosnia or Somalia? I ask because my son is probably heading to the Middle East sometime this year and I'm wondering if you really give a rat's ass about the people that are there or if it just makes for a good sound bite.

Hi Betz,

Yes I do in fact have a chil he is only 8 but I do care that they are over there I think so many peoples kids are getting killed for no reason in our country and over there for no reason!! I do understand because I have a child and would not want to put mine in a war that maybe back when it started had a reason but now there is just no point and they are still dieing over there. IT's very upsetting and often brings tears to my eyes to think that could be my son in a few years! Believe me a few years ago I could have cared less about politics myself but its just that I have to think about my future and my families future. Poeple need to stop thinking about their political beliefs and start thinking about WHAT will happen if we all make the wrong choices in our lives. We CAN make a difference and I am making a CHANGE for the better.

I don't know if the statement was directed at me, but I'll answer.

Of course I care who is being blown to bits.

I'm curious why you think that people who don't think in lockstep with you are "sheep" or can't think for themselves. The whole accusation of people being "sheep" means they all think the same, does it not? If everyone thought the same as you, wouldn't that make you one of the sheep?

Then the answer is no, you haven't had a child "blown to bits". Unless your son has aspirations to go into the military, you don't have anything to worry about. Truthfully, I don't want my son going over there either . . . I don't know of one military parent I've talked to that does. But, my son is an adult and he made the decision.

Clinton also sent our young men & women into harms way for his own gain - to get the public attention off his own misdeeds - I mean, what did Bosnia ever do to us?

All politicians are in it for themselves and if their lips are moving, they are lying to someone.

But the USA is no longer isolated. We, like it or not, are a global society.

I don't think we understand just how much rancor there is for the US for our invasion of Iraq and our continued presence there.

I think we need a softer, gentler face as President at this time in history; one that can present a side to the US people AND present a side to the rest of the world.

At this time in history, I think Barak Hussein Obama is much better fitted for the task.

White supremacy groups are gathering, yet is their memory so short as to remember race Mr. Adolph Hitler was?

Rancor goes both ways. I could name a few I have a whole bunch of rancor for. I'm not so sure what amount of rancor you are talking about. Who are the ones full of rancor?

I don't think we need a softy with a gentle face. We had one of those in a sweater once upon a time. He was totally worthless.

White supremacy groups are gathering? What's that all about? Adolph was a white German, BTW.

We have a lot of issues facing us. We need leadership. The outlook is dismal. We have a do nothing, squabbling Congress and presidential choices that are lacking, in my opinion.

Let's pare it down from millions to merely 100s of thousands if that will help you out.

Of course the stats do not take into account those dead not recovered, buried w/o documentation, dead from injuries at a later date, dead from starvation due to relocating to refugee camps, dead from.....hopefully you get the picture.

They are older stats and I believe that others have died since posted. Here are a few web sites found in 1 minute.

Tommy pull your head out!!

Balanced budget, great relationship's with other countries, better support systems for the less wealthy, the balls to enact a windfall tax on oil companies during a past oil crunch, etc. etc.

If you did not have your head for far up your Bishop's behind you could research yourself (or even use that memory).

Tommy,
Let's talk about presidents I know you look up to and even espouse as pillars of the community, Joe and Brigham.

They had dozens of mistresses didn't they. Even 14 year old girls, right? Oh that's right they were involved in a "spiritual marriage", yeah right!!

Maybe Bill and Monica had a spiritual marriage? To each his own religion right ex church leader?

Ok so again just a few reasons why Bill Clinton was one of the finest Presidents. He could point to the lowest unemployment rate in modern times, the lowest inflation in 30 years, the highest home ownership in the country's history, dropping crime rates in many places, and reduced welfare rolls. He proposed the first balanced budget in decades and achieved a budget surplus. As part of a plan to celebrate the millennium in 2000, Clinton called for a great national initiative to end racial discrimination. Can your boy Bush say this? I think not in fact quite the opposite.

Show me where I ever said that number is "acceptable." But let's not blow things completely out of proportion.

And I've never thought the Iraq war was justified.

The Congress controls the budget. It was controlled by Republicans.

Bill started the Alliance for a Healthier Generation for students all over the world to bring healthier lunches to schools and help stop childhood obesity. He also has the Clinton Global Initiative which is another GOOD thing because it helps with Energy and Climate Change, Education, Global Health and Alleviating Poverty. AmeriCorps..... The list goes on. Is ANY of this bad? I don't think so. These are just a few of the GOOD things Bill Clinton has done and continues to do. When Bill Clinton was our President Terrorist keep on attacked us and yet he did nothing to stop them.

WTC (Oklahoma City Bombing 1993)
USS Cole bombing
US embassy bombings
(Just to name a few)

So what do you think is going to happen when or if we stop the war in Iraq? The terrorist are just going to stop what they are doing and make Peace?

What did Bill Clinton do when terrorist attacked us? Nothing.. What happen when he did nothing? They attacked us again & again.

What happen when Terrorists attacked us under Bush? He took action and went to war? The Terrorist then left this Country and went home.. We have not been attacked since 911.

Democrats want to end this war. Then what? Do they have a plan to keep us safe? Or will we keep getting attacked like the Clinton days?

I am all for ending this war and bring our troops home safe. But I feel that we should at least have a plan put in place first. Something the Democrats dont seem to have and let people know what it is

So you want a solid plan? Have Bush talk to the "terrorists". Oh that's right, he does not talk to the enemy! What a great leader we have, and what a poor excuse for a democracy we have also. In case you did not know over 75% of the voters want us out of Iraq but old monkey brain is the decider. Heck I thought the American people haad a voice? You Clinton BS is as old as dirt by the way. When Bill Clinton was our President Terrorist keep on attacked us and yet he did nothing to stop them.

WTC (Oklahoma City Bombing 1993)
USS Cole bombing
US embassy bombings
(Just to name a few)

Why do you say he did "nothing?"

The first WTC bombing and Oklahoma City were perpetrated by different groups.

The Cole and Embassy bombings were definitely a surprise, done by a group that was unknown at the time, Al Qaeda. Al Qaeda gained prominence fighting the U.N. peacekeeping force in Somalia which was mostly comprised of U.S. soldiers sent by President George H.W. Bush in 1992. It is widely accepted that Al Qaeda gained political power worldwide through its activities against the U.S. in this conflict. But Somalia was not Clinton's doing.

After the Cole and embassy bombings the U.S. began their intelligence shift from cold-war era methods to anti-terrorism. But intelligence gathering doesn't happen overnight. Nonetheless, when Clinton left office his #1 warning to Bush was anti-terrorism and he handed Bush a huge dossier on Al Qaeda.

Bush ignored it. His appointed National Security Advisor, Condoleeza Rice, was quoted as saying that she had never even heard of this "Al Qaeda." Bush is also quoted as saying that he didn't want to target these little groups in Afghanistan because he didn't want to "swat at flies." This attitude is widely documented in several books written by administration insiders. 9/11 was a complete surprise to the Bush administration even though it didn't have to be and definitely should not have been.

So what do you think is going to happen when or if we stop the war in Iraq? The terrorist are just going to stop what they are doing and make Peace?

Iraq is a civil war. People in Iraq are not "terrorists." They are fighting for political power in that country because we created the political vacuum and opened the door.

I am all for ending this war and bring our troops home safe. But I feel that we should at least have a plan put in place first. Something the Democrats dont seem to have and let people know what it is

What happened after the U.S. exited Vietnam? Nothing.

What happened after the U.S. exited Beirut? Nothing.

What happened to the Soviets after they exited Afghanistan? Nothing.

What happened to the British when they exited the middle east? Nothing.

History is against you on this one.

The plans are out there, it's you who hasn't taken the time to read them.

By the way, "The Democrats" is a big group and there are many plans, just as there are many plans from "The Republicans." Take your pick. Just don't "stay the course."

Thomask,

I don't accuse anyone for my problems. Guess what I am actually pretty smart. Why is it Republicans think Democrats are stupid because they don't agree with them? Again you revert to childish tactics? I accuse Bush for the problems for the past 8 years though because he unfortunately got elected twice. You go and try to blame Bill Clinton? Come on seriously. So much I would share with him that I didn't get to last time!( I am sure I will get another uncalled for response from this comment by Thomas)

Oops Sorry Dubs I made a mistake. Typing quickly with an 8 year old son acting crazy makes me not pay attention sometimes. I know your not trying to be mean thats cool. Although if that's the only thing that can be pointed on me is spelling something wrong then I am obviously a good speaker. Never loose my head though and I can admit when I am wrong. As Chinese authorities have clamped down on unrest in Tibet and jailed dissidents in advance of the 2008 Olympics, Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton has taken a strong public stance, calling for restraint in Tibet and urging President Bush to boycott the Olympics opening ceremonies in Beijing.

But her recent stern comments on China's internal crackdown collide with former President Bill Clinton's fundraising relationship with a Chinese Internet company accused of collaborating with the mainland government's censorship of the Web. Last month, the firm, Alibaba Inc., carried a government-issued "most wanted" posting on its Yahoo China homepage, urging viewers to provide information on Tibetan activists suspected of stirring recent riots.

OH WHAT A TANGLED WEB THEY WEAVE, AGAIN!

The Difference Between Republicans and Democrats

A Republican and a Democrat were walking down the street when they came to a homeless person. The Republican gave the homeless person his business card and told him to come to his business for a job. He then took twenty dollars out of his pocket and gave it to the homeless person.

The Democrat was very impressed, and when they came to another homeless person, he decided to help. He walked over to the homeless person and gave him directions to the welfare office. He then reached into the Republican's pocket and got out twenty dollars. He kept $15 for administrative fees and gave the homeless person five.

Now you understand the difference between Republicans & Democrats.

As Chinese authorities have clamped down on unrest in Tibet and jailed dissidents in advance of the 2008 Olympics, Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton has taken a strong public stance, calling for restraint in Tibet and urging President Bush to boycott the Olympics opening ceremonies in Beijing.

But her recent stern comments on China's internal crackdown collide with former President Bill Clinton's fundraising relationship with a Chinese Internet company accused of collaborating with the mainland government's censorship of the Web. Last month, the firm, Alibaba Inc., carried a government-issued "most wanted" posting on its Yahoo China homepage, urging viewers to provide information on Tibetan activists suspected of stirring recent riots.

OH WHAT A TANGLED WEB THEY WEAVE, AGAIN!

Watch Tom Tom,

I can cut and paste only the part of the article I agree with also. Do not see anything in yours about the 2005 date or the money being used for charities? Hmmm typical hypocrite.....here is the rest of the story.....

Alibaba, which took over Yahoo's China operation in 2005 as part of a billion-dollar deal with the U.S.-based search engine, arranged for the former president to speak to a conference of Internet executives in Hangzhou in September 2005. Instead of taking his standard speaking fees, which have ranged from $100,000 to $400,000, Clinton accepted an unspecified private donation from Alibaba to his international charity, the William J. Clinton Foundation.

The former president's charity has raised more than $500 million over the last decade and has been lauded for its roles in disaster response, AIDS prevention and Third World medical and poverty relief.

Foreign contributions to American-based charities are allowed under U.S. law.

Fueled by such cash, the foundation has grown into a worldwide philanthropic dynamo, using its financial clout and influence with business leaders to streamline solutions for logistical logjams that have long plagued charity operations. The foundation has pressed to lower the price of expensive AIDS medications and set up long-term projects across the Third World.

Hi uto, how's your day. There's another important point in this article. Go back and read it. These so-called foundations he has going do not allow for outside verification of their finances. Could it be because those "administration costs" are through the roof? $20 is given, $15 goes to administration costs and $5 go towards the needy. Same old, same old scam. Keep writing those checks! :)

Hey uto, here's a little humor to brighten your day:

Q: What's the difference between a Democrat and a prostitute?

A: The prostitute gives value for the money she takes.

Very funny ThomasK, just goes to prove Republicans always reduce to name calling like a 5 year old when they don't have anything smart to say. Which is pretty much most of the time. Very grown up of you. Give the boy a cookie.:P

So you do think just like uto. How nice of you. What other 5 year old comments would you like to say about another's faith? I can't wait for another one of your grown up answers. :kiss: :kiss:
Freudian slip there, Thomas? :laugh: I was not aware "Republican" was or is a "faith". I do not see the words Mormon, LDS, or anything like unto it in the comments above.

Of course, this is Utah, so I can see how so many would think they are synonyms for each other.

Like you. ;)

Now it's a three ring circus. You really do have comprehension problems. I was referring to uto's last comments to me:

Go ask your bishop how you should think Tommy.

As long as you continue in the church of Joeseoph's Myth we will disagree!

You're taking things out of context. But that's what you do. Pay attention to the line of comments before you stick your nose in.

If it's a "three ring circus" Thomas, it's only because you are a clown.

I was responding to ONE of your posts. If you are in the habit of inferring things in one post that go back several posts, then that is your comprehension problem, not mine. So, please point out where in the post above that I repoded to that faith or religion were mentioned.

Hint: It isn't . But go ahead and make a fool of yourself anyway. ;)

YOU DIMWIT. That post was part of the previous posts. Why should I have to string them all together so you can figure out what is meant? You butt into the middle of a conversation and think you're some high and mighty know-it-all. Go play with yourself. You can make up whatever you feel like, just like you did here. :kiss: :kiss:

Ahh, there's the hypocrite preacher of "let's all act Christlike" :laugh: Name calling, etc, next thing you know, he'll be in one of the religious threads preaching and deriding me for my name calling. :laugh: Friggin hypocrite. :angry:

I guess in your mind it's ok in a political thread, but when we switch to a religious thread it's not? :blink: :laugh:

Well I could say that Truth is acting like you, but that would definitely be very un-you-know-who like. He's not THAT bad.

You know its typical. At least the Clinton Foundation is HELPING these people not hurting them. Without them how many children would be dead or dying of preventable diseases. But I guess that doesn't matter to you Thomas. $5.00 to these children and people is ALOT! What is your problem???? Do you even have a heart in that shallow body of yours? DO you have a heart for people who try to help others or people who need help? Sorry, not everyone is well off and there are people in the US and all over the world that can live a life because of the Clinton Foundations help. Get past your political beliefs and open your eyes to the good things this foundation has done. The Clinton Foundation has done NOTHING BUT GOOD! Stop and think about what they have done to HELP others and stop looking at what they haven't done for you!!! Life is not all about I, me, mine.
