You just gotta feel real sorry for these poor entrepreneurs. I'm certain that if Obama had been president instead of Bush, that the scalpers would be making money hand over fist.

The scalpers reap what they sowed. I know we chose not to attend this year due to the SOF's poor ticket policies. It seems many of the annual attendees made other plans when the SOF chose not to allow them their usual prepublic purchases. I have been attending for over a decade, and this will mark the first year that I have no interest in it.

Obama is too busy backtracking on his statement, when working-class voters experience economic hardship "they get bitter, they cling to guns or religion."

Apparently, Obama thinks gun owners are either fools or have short memories. We'll see come November.

I was upset at the scalpers at first. Then I decided to have a little patience for these tickets. I have followed Ebay and KSL.com and there are still alot of tickets for sale.

I got mine last tuesday from BYU ticket office. Seats and in the shade- in a chair- and on the front row of the field and I paid regular price. I hope the scalpers end up learning a lesson.B)

I got left holding the bag. I have good tickets. Row 3 and 13 on the field, and Sec 5 row 7. 12 tickets total. 4 in each spot. Email john.richards21@comcast.net if you are interested in premium seats at my cost.

When this story was first reported in April, I suggested patience and watch the price drop.

If you want the best seats in the stadium, wait until late Thursday or even Friday morning and you will score your Miley/Hannah Montana Tickets for LESS than face value.

Just make sure you really look at what you are buying. (Avoiding counterfeit tickets)

I wrote the book on getting deals like this: Check out <http://www.thepoormansticket.blogspot.com/>

Half price might be able to convince us to go again this year. We already made alternate plans. Life of a scalper, win some and lose some.
