This administration uses executive privilege too often. As a people, we should demand everything they have under the FOIA. As I recall, the whitehouse answers to the people, not the other way around. According to the SCOTUS ruling on executive privilege, it only applies to requeuse from congress or the supreme court. Therefore, this information should be available through any FOIA request.

Liberal cry babies will moan and groan like a little school girl but the fact is the President knows that is best to keep us free during this war against the Islamist. I am glad he is sticking it in the eye of anti-Americans like Oberman, Maddow, DailyKos, the Kennedys and Soros, not to mention the Magic Messiah Obama.

Revealing the identity of a covert CIA agent working on nuclear counter proliferation is "best to keep us free?"

How odd.

Executive Privilege does not exist in the U.S. Constitution. But Article I, section 8 does:

The Congress shall have the power...

...To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces;

...To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

Bush, once again, tramples on the U.S. Constitution to the delight of Raymond and his neocon friends.

Odd pretty much describes Raymond....

...on his good days.

Wow I never knew that one could overdose on Rush L. and, Sean H.

:woohoo:

But Raymond shows us what can happen when you do.

:blink:
